Detroit Dance Collective, Michigan's most highly acclaimed professional contemporary dance company, is holding auditions for male and female dancers for its 29th Season. Dancers must have extensive modern dance training and performing experiences. Skills in improvisation are essential for the creation of DDC repertory, and training in ballet and other dance styles is advantageous. Dancers planning to audition should bring a resume, recent photo and letter of recommendation. The audition will include a technique class, improvisation and learning phrases from DDC repertory. Interviews with prospective candidates will be held at the end of the audition.

This exciting 29th Season extends from October 2008 through May 2009 and includes performances and teaching residencies in the Detroit Metro area and cities throughout Michigan. DDC's extensive outreach education programming provides teaching opportunities for experienced teachers and also offers teacher training in creative movement for children to all company members.

Dancers are contracted for the season and are paid for all rehearsals, performances and teaching positions. All DDC personnel are independent contractors and are responsible for their own income tax obligations.

Detroit Dance Collective is an equal opportunity employer and provides programs and services without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex or disability.
